

Senator Julian M. Carroll

Julian Carroll, former Kentucky governor, lieutenant governor and Speaker of the House, returned to the state senate in 2005 to represent the 7th District.

Senator Carroll remains a strong champion of education and health care, and advocates expanding Kentucky's economic base.

Due to his willingness to do so and his residence in the Capitol City, Senator Carroll serves on more committees than any other legislator does. Committee appointments include Economic Development, Tourism and Labor; State and Local Government; Enrollment; Licensing, Occupations and Administrative Regulations; Banking and Insurance; Health and Welfare, and Contract Review. He also serves on a Budget Review Subcommittee on General Government.

Senator Carroll is a Frankfort attorney and a lay minister at First Assembly of God Church, Frankfort. He is a graduate of the University of Kentucky and the University of Kentucky College of Law. He holds honorary doctorates from five universities.

The Senator and his wife, Charlann, have four children and seven grandchildren.

The 7th District includes Franklin, Anderson, Woodford and the northern portion of Fayette County.
