Bolivia – Five for Water, a clean water effort started in 2010 by Bill Prost of the Rotary Club of Cape Girardeau, Mo., recently installed eight wells in Bolivia. In partnership with Green Mountain Coffee, the initiative sells fair-trade, organic coffee to U.S. Rotary clubs, which use it to raise funds for their own projects; more than 300 clubs are participating. With the proceeds from the sales to clubs and other contributions, Five for Water has raised $184,000 for water projects, benefiting more than 50,000 people in 10 coffee-producing countries.

Canada – The Rotary Club of Campbell River Daybreak, B.C., aims to boost numeracy – the ability to understand and work with numbers – through an educational DVD titled I Love When We Count. The club worked with the local school district to produce the video, and a grant from the district helped fund the project. The DVD teaches parents how to help children up to age six use math in their everyday lives. Seven Rotary clubs in three districts have bought 1,512 copies from the club since 2008 and given them free to local families.

India – At a November meeting of the Rotary Club of Chandigarh Mid Town, Peter Burleigh, U.S. ambassador to India, presented the seventh scholarship in a program started by the Rotary Club of Milano Sud-Est, Italy, for female engineering students. Jyoti Chowdhary, whose parents died when she was seven years old, will receive an annual stipend of $1,000. Chowdhary's grandparents, who raised her on a modest pension, encouraged her studies; she recently ranked highly on the All India Engineering Entrance Examination. At the meeting, which 200 Rotarians attended, Burleigh also delivered a speech on the massive growth of India's economy, titled "Asia Rising – What It Means to the USA."
