Next Week's Program...

Mr. Eric Whisman is the President of the Franklin County Trust for Historic Preservation. A native of Frankfort, KY and Bald Knob, he is a graduate of the University of Kentucky. He has long had an interest in historic places and history in general and has worked in the field of historic preservation now 3 years for the Kentucky Trust, working to save historic places across Kentucky. Additionally, Eric serves on the board of directors of several local and state organizations and committees, including the the Lebanon Community Cemetery in Franklin County, the Bluegrass Trust for Historic Preservation of Lexington, and works part-time helping the Capital City Museum of Frankfort. He regularly provides instruction in preservation of historic buildings and cemeteries, and lectures on the importance of preserving our important heritage. From urban metropolises to rural crossroad communities, preservation creates tangible links to the past, while guaranteeing important resources to develop our future.
