CEO Dr. Tim Smith founded the Institute for Aerospace Education in 2010, but the idea for the project came long before. In 1988, Smith was a math teacher in California who recognized the importance of providing his students real-world connections. A move to Kentucky in 1997 brought Dr. Smith further into education as an administrator and consultant, and further into aviation. He gained a few key sponsors and set out to build the Kentucky Institute for Aerospace Education (KIAE), which later changed its name to the Institute of Aerospace Education to reflect its expanding reach.

The KIAE is a non-profit, tax-exempt organization devoted to improve STEM learning and create aerospace career pathways. The KIAE operates as an aerospace learning laboratory in collaboration with Frankfort HS Aviation Academy and its network schools. From this learning, the KIAE provides toolkits/resources to schools in the network at no charge (flight kits, aircraft maintenance resources, and engineering materials). The KIAE is working to become one of the P20 Innovation Labs serving schools in Kentucky.
