Next Week's Speaker...

Dr. Mark Gill is the Dean of the School of Business, Equine and Sport Management at Midway University. In this role, he oversees undergraduate, adult degree completion and graduate programs that account for over 550 students. In addition to academic programs, this role comes with a 180-acre working horse farm and a herd of 36 horses. His doctorate is in information systems from Arizona State University, the #1 school for innovation according to US News and World Report. Outside of academia, he has worked as the Director of Operations for United States Master Swimming and is the swim course director for Ironman Louisville.

October 30 Weekly Meeting

The Oct. 30 meeting will be at Franklin County High School's Career Tech Center, 1106 E. Main Street. Bill Scott has arranged for the club to meet and have tours of the facility for our members. Parking is available close to the building; Bill passed a sign-in sheet around at today's meeting to see how many lunches will be needed.

Sergeant-at-Arms

The committee of the Sergeant-at-Arms needs a few Rotarians to learn how to help with setting up the weekly meetings. Please contact Chuck Dickinson or Lee Troutwine for details.

We had a fantastic program at today's Rotary Club meeting – a panel discussion moderated by Rotarian Steve Stewart, publisher of The State Journal, on the First Amendment. Panel members were, from left: John Nelson, editorial director of Landmark Communications; Amye Bensenhaver, former assistant attorney general for Kentucky; and Jeremy Rogers, a trial attorney and winner of the Scripps Howard First Amendment Center's James Madison award for outstanding service to the First Amendment.
